

 ICCA

ICCA International corrugated case association

MEMBER DIRECTORY

< 1999 - 2001 >

MISSION

The purpose of the International Corrugated Case Association (ICCA) is to serve the interests of the worldwide corrugated container industry primarily through services and activities that supplement those provided by its association members - the industry's national and regional trade associations or federations.

MEMBERSHIP

Association members are national or regional trade associations or federations representing corrugated box manufacturers.

Company members are corrugated box manufacturers in countries where there is no applicable corrugated trade association or in which the association is not an ICCA member

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

ICCA conducts a Management Conference every two years in different parts of the world. The conference brings together global corrugated packaging industry executives to share information on appropriate issues and topics.

ICCA compiles and publishes worldwide corrugated industry data. The membership receives quarterly international corrugated shipment/production and containerboard statistics. These statistics are the most authoritative reflection of worldwide corrugated industry data on a country-by-country basis.

ICCA also provides its members with country-specific corrugated packaging regulations to assist industry customers when shipping internationally. It equips members with useful links and contacts, providing a network of resources. ICCA also provides members with international news, events and available publications.

The ICCA Web site (www.iccanet.org) is a quick, easy and valuable resource for ICCA members to gather all the information listed above (and more) by way of their computers.

The site is updated consistently and is a great way to use ICCA's resources to their fullest potential.
